DESCRIPTION

The programme intends to emphasis on developing practical innovative skills and at the end of the programme the participants are expected to learn strategies to identify the root causes of current issues, how to effectively communicate complex ideas to a broad audience, and the relationship between innovation, business, and policy. If you have asked yourself any of the below, or related questions, you will probably be interested in the FDP on Technology, Innovation & Entrepreneurship sessions

➤ How can I make sure that my new idea will succeed?

➤ What is the future of finance?

➤ How does technology impact globalization, and vice versa?

➤ How do intellectual property rights impact innovation?

➤ Will technological advances and the accompanying new economic forces affect the world order?

➤ How does one lead if you don't know where one is going?

➤ How does an idea or product go viral?
